Functional Approaches to Restore Lumbar Balance 8 CEs

with instructor Jan Lang, LMT

The back is a strong and flexible structure that is designed to support the body, protect the spinal cord and uses the muscular system to facilitate movement. At the same time our daily activities, overuse, aging and/or physical trauma can create back problems, which results in 90% of Americans being affected by back pain/injury and 50% of them suffering more than one episode.

In this workshop you will learn and practice hands on skills to quickly assess and address the underlying issues that cause back pain/problems. This workshop is tailored to expand your treatment approach and to effectively restore balance to your client's back health.
